Pvt. Arthur Weaver Anxious To Return

Pvt. Arthur C. Weaver, stationed at Ft. Dix, N. J., former employee of Revolution mills, last week wrote a letter to Coley Phillips, superintendent, expressing his desire to return to work at the local mills.

He enclosed the following selected poem to be published in the Textorian:

"Be strong!
We are not here to play—to dream, to drift.
We have hard work to do and loads to lift.
Shun not the struggle—face it; 'tis God's gift.
Be strong!
It matters not how deep entrenched the wrong.
How hard the battle goes, the day how long;
Faint not—fight on! Tomorrow comes the song."

Miss Anna Seaburg Speaker For Club

White Oak Community club met Monday evening with Mrs. Sula Brown, new president, presiding. After a short business meeting, Miss Lillian Tilley, program chairman, introduced Miss Anna Seaburg, retired Y.W.C.A. secretary, who spoke on "Public Affairs and Women in Action".

Hostesses for next meeting are Miss Tilley, Mrs. Billie Parsons and Miss Inez Stone.

Fall "Y" Activities Are In Full Swing

Gymnasium activities are operating on fall and winter schedules now with good attendance in all classes of sports.

Basketball teams have started preliminary drill, and with a number of young men returning from the service, there are prospects for some good teams this season.

Considerable interest is being shown in volley ball by both younger and older fellows. Swimming in the indoor pool is also increasingly popular.

With passing of tennis weather, racquet wielders will be taking up badminton in the gymnasium. The physical director will help arrange badminton periods.

Gra-Y clubs are planning a football tournament in the local schools to begin November 1.

According to Leon Bell, physical director, those "body building boys," Merlin Beaver and company, are continuing regularly three nights a week, lifting weights, punching the bag, doing set-ups and push-ups, chinning the bar and other physical development routines.

A number of new faces have been seen in the Junior gymn during the past week of physical fitness exercises.

Any one may be assisted by the director in planning a routine of exercises suitable for his personal needs.

Fidelis Class Holds Meeting

WASHINGTON SNAPSHOTS

BY JAMES PRESTON

Minn.-Kansas Team

Many miles separate the home districts of balding, chunky Harold Knutson and his fellow member of the House of Representatives, Frank Carlson, but in policy concerning your taxes and mine they are as close as next door neighbors.

Rep. Knutson came to know the problems of the average taxpayer as a newspaper editor in his home state of Minnesota, long before he left St. Cloud to wage battle against mounting taxes on Capitol Hill, while Rep. Carlson is as familiar with the subject as he is with raising cattle in his native Kansas. Both are Republicans.

Representatives Knutson and Carlson appear pretty thoroughly versed in matters involving dinner pails and economics. To the Minnestotan, taxation is never a dull subject. He loves a stiff debate and is respected for his ability to "give and take" on the House floor. And he becomes lyrical when tariff-cutting legislation is brought up.

Aware of Burdens

Tall and gentle-voiced cattleman Carlson has learned about taxation the hard way, making extensive studies, delving into many sources, and interviewing taxpayers in all walks of life. In recent years he has been keenly aware of the burdens placed on individual and businessman alike.

As members of the House Ways and Means Committee, both men have had a role in shaping important tax legislation. Knutson's proposal of an "across-the-board" cut of 20 per cent in individual income taxes was popular with Republican members of the House.

Just A Drop In The Lake

Did you read the verse, "Your Job," on the front page of last week's Textorian? If you didn't it is worth looking up that issue to read it. But first, here is a little story along the same line:

Once, in ancient times, a prince had a dream of a beautiful garden with a lake of expensive perfume in its center. When he awoke, this prince remembered his dream very vividly and was determined to have such a garden and such a lake. His gardeners worked long and hard to finish the landscaping and planting which when finished was just as the prince had dreamed. But the place for the lake was still empty and all his money had been spent on the garden.

This resourceful ruler decided that in order to fill the lake with perfume, and thus make his dream a reality, he would ask every one of his subjects to attend a grand ceremony in the garden. As his admission, each person would bring a small bottle of perfume to pour into the lake. In this way the lake of perfume would be formed in the garden without any great expense to anyone.

The day of the ceremony was set. The invitations were sent through all the land, and the loyal subjects came by the thousands, each with a small bottle which he emptied into the lake.

When the lake was full, a fanfare was played and the prince in his royal robes went to the lake's edge to dip up some of the perfume. In great disappointment he found that the lake was filled with ordinary water. Each of the guests, believing that his small contribution was unimportant, had brought a bottle of water instead of perfume. So the garden was incomplete because each person who came thought that his job was not important.

Each of our jobs may seem to be only a drop in the lake, but as the lake is made of many drops, so industry is made of many jobs. And our United States is made of many persons working in such jobs.

So "—don't ever think you're of little account—

Remember you're part of the total amount."

Von King, pastor of Eller Memorial Baptist church, was elected secretary-treasurer, succeeding Rev. Neil Armstrong, pastor of Broadview Baptist church. Elected to serve on the program committee were Rev. H. T. Durden, pastor of the Church of God, Rev. Dennard and H. M. Angel.

Rev. B. L. Gupton, new pastor of Webster Memorial Baptist church, was welcomed as a new member of the association. Expressions of appreciation were extended Rev. Clay and Rev. C. W. Russell, pastor of Newlyn Street Methodist church, who have been returned to their former charges by the Western North Carolina Methodist Conference.

Plans Being Made For Foods Exhibit

Plans are under way for the canned food exhibit to be given by Revolution Community club on Friday, November 2 at the regular time for the club meeting. All housewives who have canned any foods by any methods are eligible to contribute to the exhibit.

The public is invited to view the accomplishments of local housewives who are cooperating in the food conservation program. Hours for bringing foods for display will be announced later.

Madeline Phillips To Wed Sgt. O'Neal

Mrs. N. F. Phillips, 1002 Asheboro street, announces the engagement of her granddaughter, Madeline and Sgt. Arthur C. O'Neal, marine corps, stationed at Cherry Point, son of Mrs. Alva V. O'Neal, 1115 Martin street, and the late Arthur C. O'Neal. A wedding, date dependent on the military, is planned for Asheboro Street Baptist church.

Miss Phillips, daughter of Mrs. W. C. Oldham, of Bear Creek, is a graduate of Bonlee high school and King's Beauty school. For six years she has been employed by White Oak Beauty shop. Sergeant O'Neal, a native of Greensboro, returned in April after 35 months in the Pacific area. He was station in Iceland in July, 1941.

Together We Build

The responsibility of each member of the community in helping soldiers wounded in battle, persons crippled by accidents, men, women, and children handicapped as a result of disease, to rebuild their lives, is told in a study project to be used in the schools of Greensboro and Guilford county this year.

Prepared by a group of teachers in Cincinnati, Ohio, at the invitation of the National Tuberculosis Association, the project has been submitted to Greensboro and Guilford county teachers by the Greensboro Tuberculosis Association.

One section of the project is called "Together We Build" and has been planned for use in grade schools. The second section "Rehabilitation" is for use in high schools. The theme of both sections, according to Mrs. Mildred T. Greene, executive secretary of the association, is the same—how handicapped persons can be assisted in finding worthwhile occupations which will also satisfy their desire to lead useful lives.

"Through this study project," she explained, "we hope that our school children will come to realize that persons physically handicapped, whether as a result of war injuries or of the ravages of a disease such as tuberculosis can lead constructive, useful lives, and that there are many ways in which each person in the community can aid them in making their adjustment. "Where this project is used in the schools, the children will undoubtedly gain a healthy attitude toward those people who are physically handicapped. They will come to realize that these individuals, no less than themselves, have a contribution to make to society.

All schools in the city and county are using these teaching units.

Govt. Deficit Spending For Jobs Decried

Any Federal Action Must Be "Applied Intelligently"—NAM

By JAMES PRESTON

Washington, D. C., October 18—There is need for definite action by Government, as well as by management, labor, and all the rest of us, if we are to develop a more effectively functioning economy, according to Walter B. Weisenburger, executive vice president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

But, says the spokesman for the 14,000 firms which produce most of our goods and employ most of the manufacturing labor force, "that Government action must be intelligently applied," adding:

"It must not be just an extension of the deficit spending tactics which Government used in the 1930's, which the record proves to have been so pathetically futile."

Never Fell Below

Official data show, Mr. Weisenburger reports, that during the 30 years—1900 through 1929—when it was assumed that individual enterprise could and would provide "full employment," the country never fell more than two per cent below that "full employment" for more than two consecutive years.

During the 10 years of 1930-1939 when Government started taking a hand in the creation of "full employment," however, the average of the labor force which was able to find jobs was 13.4 per cent below "full employment."

"That record," says the NAM executive, "certainly does not justify the argument that a Government substitute for individual enterprise must be found if we are to attain our goal of full employment.

"Indeed, viewed superficially, the record suggests that the best way to attain full employment is for Government to stay as far away from the problem as possible! But, unquestionably, that IS superficial."

Cause For Hope—Not Fear

Shocking is the realization that there are presently over 600,000 Americans suffering from cancer. Of this number, an estimated 170,000 will die this year.

Even more disturbing is the fact that, while 295,433 Americans were killed or missing in World War II from December 7th, 1941, to July 23rd, 1945, cancer killed twice as many at home during the same period.

But all of these facts should not be grounds for blind fear. Rather, there is cause for much hope. Cancer scientists state that from 30 to 50 per cent of all cancer deaths might be prevented if people would learn the early possible cancer symptoms, recognize them and obtain prompt treatment by competent doctors or approved clinics throughout the country. In this way, many cancers could be controlled or cured!

The American Cancer Society and its Field Army are dedicated to the dissemination of these vital facts on cancer. They ask that you familiarize yourself with the following symptoms and precautionary steps which persons can take to protect themselves and their families:

Early Danger Signals

Any painless lump, thickening or sore that does not heal—especially about the breast, tongue, lip or mouth.

Progressive change in the color or size of a wart, mole or birthmark.

Irregular bleeding or discharge from any natural body opening or breast nipple.

The Complicated Problems

Periods of transition are usually filled with uncertainties; however, it appears that this present one has been more hazardous because of a greater lack of advance preparation by the government and because of a lack of understanding among the average citizen.

In the first place, it was the government's place to start the ball to rolling, not because the government in our opinion should exercise many controls of business and industry during normal times, but because the government did exercise practically complete control during the war and it logically follows that during the transition period the government should have had a well-defined program of conversion before dumping the knotty problems into the laps of the citizens. It appears now that the government did not measure up satisfactorily to its responsibility, and the present indications are that the government has not as yet come forward with a suitable plan for reconversion and a suitable system of relaxing its wartime controls which could not continue in a democratic country.

Maybe not to the same extent, but at least to a great extent, the average citizen has not measured up satisfactorily. This transition period seems to have been grasped by many as a period to gain power for controls over the nation. Opposition to the seizure of such controls is a natural reaction by a great majority of the people. This is evidenced by the fact that our Congressmen are receiving many letters from back home protesting some of the free-for-all fights for power and domination. It is understood that some of these letters at least are coming from people who have never before been so aroused as to write their representatives in Congress.

Unless the people in this country can put a stop to the many movements which might be described as battles for power, our period of transition from war to peace will not only be long but also bitter, and in the end not only will the standard of living in this country suffer, but so will the prospects for keeping this nation a land of freedom and opportunity.

We are not unmindful of the fact that comparative hardships are being imposed upon a lot of people. On the other hand, we do not believe that very many people are going to really suffer during this transition period, and we feel that it is the joint responsibility of both the government and the citizens to see that the people do not suffer unless they themselves are responsible for their own deprivations. We do not believe, however, that it should be the function of either the government or the citizens to help those who are fully able to help themselves. Self-respecting citizens do not want to become charges of either the government or the citizens.

We admire more than anything else ambitions of individuals. We look with pride upon those who strive to advance themselves, provided they do so honestly and honorably. On the other hand, we cannot condone the policy of doing nothing while waiting for the exact opportunities which ambitions crave. We understand that a good many people are at least temporarily refusing to become employed on the grounds that they can't get just exactly what they want or on the grounds that they cannot earn what they did in war plants during the war.

Our greatest hope is that both the members of Congress and the average citizen will approach our complicated reconversion problems with honest, open minds and in doing so will think not only of the present and temporary gains, but will give serious consideration to the future and the ultimate general welfare.

Alice Welch (Song Bird of Bessemer) is unable to decide just how to arrange her blonde curls for her next radio appearance.

Mrs. Oscar Haynes spent the week end in Hickory, her home town. We're glad she didn't talk herself to death while among old friends and acquaintances.

Ruth Lumley is looking forward to the arrival of a gorgeous hunk of humanity from the Pacific coast in the near future.

Miss Ruth Butler hopes to make her debut this fall if the young men at ORD will just give her a little breathing spell.

Lois Brady would like some enlightenment about snipe hunting. Seems that she has an invitation to attend such a party, but is undecided if she should accept.

Miss Needham is treking off again this week end to Charlotte to visit a girl friend who is getting married. Watch out, Alene, they say its catching.

Wallace Bourne has a pair of shoes he would like to sell, size nine, in case you are interested!

Dancing seems to have become quite popular among people in our office. It may be that we'll have quite a few terpsichoreans by Christmas.

Speaking of Christmas, Mildred Lineberry and her roommate must really be enjoying that apartment. We hear they've already been decorating for Christmas.

Miss Swearingen took one day of her vacation to be with her nephew, Sgt. Wallace Ross, who has just returned from overseas.

Merlin Beaver, after much recent practice, can now change hippens in 12 seconds flat, and with his eyes closed, mind you!

It's been a long time, no see for Margie Hancock. She got two long distance calls from Rhode Island last week, and there's a furlough coming up in November, so her dreams are getting better all the time.

Ila Roberts is gradually getting caught up with her visiting. She spent a pleasant week end with her friend, Miss Eula Gannon on Church street.

Any day, along about evening, you can find Vera Cox with her most recent boy friend at "Pop" Marshburns, listening to the current romantic ballads of their favorite, Dick Haymes.

Moir Ayers is now singing in a Barber Shop Quartet, featured by the Euterpe club. Seems that the quartet entertained a a banquet at the O'Henry hotel Tuesday night.

Audree Anthony doesn't have much spare time since trying to find an apartment. Any help will be appreciated. We hear she's having to do a little extra work at home, too, since their maid retired.

Florence Johnson made a trip "to the farm" in Sanford over the week end. We're wondering if she brought any ham and sweet potatoes back. Sounds good anyway.

Ginny Boguz went to a banquet at the O'Henry Saturday night sponsored by the Woodmen of the World. Seems she had a wonderful time and learned some new and queer dances.

Sydney Cone attended the American Association of Textile Chemists and Colorists annual meeting in Charlotte Saturday and Sunday. He says the meeting was a success, and so was the speech he delivered.

Its a pity Fred Newnan and his family have to motor all the way to Durham to buy a decent hamburger. Ever heard of Jim's Lunch?

Marie Hall and Marie Sykes did not attend the fair. Reason: You find out.

FLASHY! FLASHY!
Place: Accounting Department
Time Element: 1 minute
Incident: Mr. Fluharty removed his hat.

Leave it to Paul Holt, to solve and diagnose all aches and pains. Office: First Aid Room-Fairgrounds. Dr. Holt, uh, sounds professional.

What's the jinx on the back row of desks in the Purchasing department? No can do.

The effect of the Duke-Navy game still hangs in Purchasing department atmosphere, namely in the form of sneezes and coughs.

Elmo Flinton knows how to pick a winner. We've met his wife and she's abitofalrit. What time does the next train (??) leave for Trinidad, Mo.?

Speaking of picking winners—3 out of 4 times isn't bad on the World Series, is it J. P. and E. F.?

Hark: Hark: What's that my ears do hear? Sneeze, drip, cough and blow is all Blanch, Millie and Ruth do, it appears. Now girls, this couldn't have all come from the Duke-Navy atmosphere. Give dear old G'boro fairgrounds a little credit, o.k. with you, dears? (All Kleenex cheerfully accepted).

We surely are glad to have Mrs. Pelton back with us after a week's absence, due to illness.

Alton Martin, U. S. Air Force has been seen on his old tramping grounds, namely, the Proximity office. Glad to see a M-A-N around. This goes for Wade Jenkins, too.

NOTE OF SYMPATHY:
Mr. Morgan
We deeply mourn the removal of front tire from your car. (You do too, don't you?)

Silly Notion: To comb Mr. Lee's curls.

Silly Sight: Ed Jones, 6'3" and Archie Baynes, 5'7" walking down office hall together. Arch, ever heard of "Stretch-o-line?"

Silly Comparison: Azalee Ferguson: Quiet as maltese kitten. J. Phillips: Atomic bomb. 'noungh said.

Silly joke: She's so dumb she thinks a Football Coach has four wheels.

Grace McDowell is absent from our midst due to sickness. Shall be glad to have her back.

New arrivals in our midst: A brand new Ediphone just for Dan McConnell. More power to you, Mull. Its simply darling, came here rolling and shaving.

Our bowling team is somewhere, but give them a little more time.

Office romances still go on. Always did like sideline attraction.

Reading & Writing

by Edwin Seaver & Robin McKown

"Men Under Stress"- by Lt. Col. Roy R. Krinker and Major John F. Spiegel, deserves more attention than it's getting. Because of its serious nature—it treats of mental disturbances caused by the war—readers may think it's only for specialists. Actually, it is important for all who want to understand better the hidden wounds our fighting men have suffered.

Colonel Grinker, former chairman of the Department of Neuropsychiatry at Michael Reese Hospital, worked in North Africa with the American ground and air forces, and for his medical research received the Legion of Merit from Eisenhower. Major Spiegel, also a psychiatrists, has worked with him.

Colonel Grinker's unique method of treatment, hitherto a military secret, has to do with the use of the drug pentothal, that induces a deep comatose state under which the patient may relive the experiences that have so deeply affected him. Wonderful cures have resulted from this drug, in conjunction with other psychiatric methods.

It is the authors' conviction that discoveries that have come out of the war will prove of the greatest value in civilian life.

The word "guerrilla" is a diminutive of the Spanish word for war, "guerra," thus literally meaning "little war," points out Isabel de Palencia in "Smouldering Freedom." She quotes the definition of the Spanish novelist, Don Benito Ferez Galdos: "Guerrilla warfare is the country in arms, it is the territory, geography itself, fighting."

One of the Book-of-the-Month Club December selections is "Beach Red," a novel about the Pacific, by Peter Bowman of the Staff of Air Force Magazine. The other is "Lovely Is the Lee" by Robert Gibbings.

It was so hot in the Persian Gulf district, says Joel Sayre in "Persian Gulf Command," that medical thermometers had to be kept on ice. One night 3,000 men were waiting under the stars to hear Lily Pons, when she sent out word she couldn't go on. She had just taken her temperature with her own thermometer and found that it was 103. A properly chilled thermometer was rushed to her dressing room forthwith, and the show went on.

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

"Do you know," said the young student at the agricultural college to an old farmer, "your methods of cultivation are a hundred years behind the time?"

Looking around, he remarked, "Why, I'd be surprised if you made a dollar out of the oats in that field."

"So would I," smiled the farmer, "it's barley."

Then there was the optician's daughter—two glasses and she made a spectacle of herself.

Suitor: Your daughter has promised to become my wife.

Father: Well, don't come to me for sympathy. I knew something like that would happen with you hanging around here five nights a week.

The lament of the tongue-tied girl:
"If oo wuv me, tay tho,
If oo don't wuv me, tay tho too;
But if oo wuv me an' tan't tay tho,

Toth I wuv that tave man tuff."

On a Yorkshire farm they were loading pigs for market. Disregarding squeals, the farmer and his son would each grab a porker by one ear and the tail and toss it into the waiting lorry.

"Darndest way I ever saw to life a hog," a GI, who was standing nearby, remarked to a fellow beside him. The farmer looked up. "What do you Yankees do?" he demanded. "Grow them with handles?"

Wife: "Do you know what day it is? Just 25 years ago we became engaged."

Absent-minded Professor: "Why didn't you remind me before, dear? It's high time that we got married!"

The general had been without a secretary for weeks. The Establishments Branch notified him that their psychologist was going to examine several candidates and perhaps he'd like to come down and watch.

The psychologist called in the first girl and said sharply, "What's 2 and 2?" The girl replied promptly, "Four." The second girl thought for a moment, suspecting a catch, said, "Twenty-two." The third applicant answered, "Four, but it could be twenty-two."

After they had gone, the psychologist turned to the general. "Those tests were very revealing. The first girl has a convertional mind. To her, 2 and 2 is always four. The second girl has imagination. She realized it might be twenty-two. The third girl is a combination of both. She's practical and at the same time has imagination. Clearly, she will make the best secretary. Now, which would you like?"

The general said without hesitation, "I'll have the one with blonde hair."

Cause For Hope—Not Fear

Persistent hoarseness, unexplained cough or difficulty in swallowing.

Persistent indigestion or any change in normal bowel habits.

See Your Doctor Regularly

See your doctor at least once each year. Especially visit him if you notice any of the above signals. Don't delay because you're scared, worried or haven't the time. Every minute counts.

Get Proper Treatment

If your doctor or approved clinic says you have cancer, don't chance home remedies or fake "cures". There are only three medically approved methods of treating cancer: Surgery, X-Ray or Radium.

Avoid Irritations

Don't eat or drink foods that are too hot. Eat slowly and regularly on a balanced diet.

Avoid irritations of the mouth and tongue due to excessive smoking, jagged teeth or ill-fitted dental plates. Keep the tongue, mouth and gums clean.

Avoid clothing that is uncomfortably tight or chafing, especially to the abdomen or breasts.

Stop Worrying

Cancer need not be considered to mean certain death. Fear is the greatest ally of cancer; so are ignorance and delay. Get over the idea that cancer is hopeless, hereditary, infectious or a disgrace. Such thoughts are scientifically absurd! Thousands of cases are being cured each year when properly diagnosed and treated. Indeed—there is a hopeful note for the future.

Communique No. 1 from "Mack" MacDaniel, manager and Dick Spivey assistant manager, Rankin High school football team.

The Melvin Trull coached Rankin High school football team defeated the highly favored Guilford team last Thursday by a score of 25 to 19. This win kept Rankin on top in the league as they are undefeated so far.

1st quarter—Rankin kicked to Guilford. A delayed pass to Culler was good for 30 yards. Culer took the ball on the next play and went through the Rankin line for a touchdown. Guilford kicked to Rankin. Wolfe received and the ball back 40 yards before he was tackled. Fruh, on a reverse play, scored for Rankin.

2nd quarter—Rankin kicked to Guilford and held them for 4 downs. After one try at the line, Apple swept around end for Rankin's second touchdown. Foust's try for the extra point was blocked. Rankin kicked to Guilford and Culler ran the whole length of the field for Guilford's second touchdown. The try for the extra point was no good.

3rd quarter—Guilford kicked to Rankin. Wolfe received making 47 yards before being stopped. Fruh scored again on an end around play. Apple made the point after touchdown on an off-tackle play. Rankin kicked to Guilford. Culler received, Fruh and Leech teamed up on a smashing tackle, causing Culler to leave the game.

4th quarter—Guilford hammered away at Rankin's line until they reached the ten yard line. Culler coming back into the game passed to Jones for a touchdown, the try for the extra point was good making the score even, 19 to 19. Guilford kicked to Rankin, Wolfe returned the ball 27 yards, Apple ran the ball for a touchdown as the game ended, score 25 to 19.

By Walter Shead

WNU Correspondent

WNU Washington Bureau, 1616 Eye St., N. W.

(This column is a substitute this week for Veteran's Service Bureau which was not received on account of strikes in Chicago Commercial printing plants.)

A World Department Of Agriculture

Every farmer and rancher, every person connected with the food and agricultural industry in these United States from producer to processor, and citizens generally, should watch with deep interest the meeting of the food and agriculture organization of the United Nations in Quebec, starting October 16.

This is the first of the permanent new United Nations agencies to be launched after the end of hostilities, which marks the importance attached to its deliberations by our government and the governments of all the 44 United Nations. As this is written, the list of American delegates to the conference has not been announced. It is likely, however, that the delegates from the United States will be headed by Howard Talley of the department of agriculture, who has acted as the United States representative on the Interim commission of the organization.

The food and agricultural organization ratified by the 44 nations at San Francisco is part and parcel, and a most important function of the United Nations organization. It is not a relief agency. Its aim is to improve world agriculture and to increase food production: to provide a higher standard of diet and raise the levels of nutrition and the standards of living throughout the world . . . all of which is intended to contribute to an expanding world economy.

The organization will likely set up machinery which will function for world agriculture and production much like our own department of agriculture functions in the United States . . . in an advisory capacity, passing along scientific development . . . the dissemination of agricultural knowledge . . . technical information and the results of scientific agricultural research . . . to aid in setting up agencies in all the 44 countries for combating soil erosion, to improve soil and crops, to develop better livestock . . . to take into consideration reforestation . . . rural electrification . . . farm to market roads . . . exploration of new sources of food . . . to provide better tools for primitive farmers to increase production . . . attention to surplus crops and many other subjects necessarily attendant to the huge and complicated task of providing more and better food for a world and its population ravished by years of total war.

Not Enough Land

There are now about 2,200,000,000 human beings populating this old world on which we live, and the experts predict that at present rate of increase there will be a billion more by the end of the century. These experts further point out that there are at present only about 4,000,000,000 acres of arable land in use, which is less than 2½ acres per capita. Even in our own country there is only a fraction more than seven acres per capita in farm lands, including woodlands and pasture lands. If we would take into account only the crop lands harvested, approximately 321,250,000 acres, our per capita acreage would just about equal the world average.

So without an expanding acreage of arable lands, without basic resources in India, in China, in Russia and many other countries, such as we have in this country, the experts say that the world will continue to produce insufficient food to feed its billions of humans.

What the representatives of these 44 nations . . . what our own delegation does at Quebec to commit this country to a program of world agricultural rehabilitation will determine in large measure whether we as a people were honest when we subscribed to the Atlantic charter and the charter of the United Nations at San Francisco.

For with this charter in existence and binding upon us . . . with our nation emerging from the war as the most fortunate, the most powerful . . . with a new conception and in a new position as the leader of the world . . . the time has passed when we can watch the people of India, China, or any other nation starving, and salve our conscience with a check to some relief society.

Two-third of the people of the world are farmers. These hundreds of millions are striving to raise food on worn out land.

And from the selfish few comes the comment: "Why should we help the rest of the world raise food when there continues to be surplus in our own crops?" And the answer, of course, is that with proper distribution; that with the rest of the world eating and living on a par with our own diet; there would be no surplus, with a continuing expanding world economy calling always for increasing production.

This was the last game for Billy Foust who leaves for the Navy Wednesday.

Communique No. 2 from Fred Newnam, Proximity Office.

The Men's Bowling team weakened by the conspicuous absence of several of its stars, bowed two games to one to the Southern Dairy five last Thursday night, at the downtown alleys. It was a regular league game. The challenge made last week still stands.

Our girls are now entered in a Wednesday night league and after getting off to a late start show real promise of developing into a contender for the league lead. Helen Wrenn, captain, Ruth Roberts, Lois Rierson, Minnie Wood, Mary Andrews, Sarah Fulp, Panthea Huffine, Aza Lea Ferguson compose the team.

So far, Revolution Office is the only one that accepted Fred Newnam's challenge for a bowling match. Merlin Beaver says that he will meet Fred's team anytime, anywhere.

ZACHARY SCOTT BETTY FIELD

This Week On WBIG

by Peggie Lewis Leonard

"Tales From Far and Near," Friday's "American School of the Air" series, has a dramatization of "Steamboat Bill" on th eprogram this afternoon at 5:00 o'clock over WBIG-CBS. Irwin Shapiro wrote the story of a legendary Mississippi River pilot and his exciting exploits during pioneer days. Marx Loeb directs the program.

"Moon Love," "If There is Someone Lovlier Than You" and "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby" are sung by Jimmy Carroll on his program over WBIG at 6:15 p.m. today. The Ken Christie Chorus sings "Men of Marlech" and Ted Dale conducts the orchestra.

The "Ginny Simms Show" is visited by Bud Abbott and Lou Costello to lend riotous repartee to the musical and variety show heard over WBIG at 7:30 p.m. today. In addition the smooth singing of the Simms lass, there will be melodies in the Frank De Vol manner. Don Wilson announces.

There is more trouble brewing for "The Aldrich Family" as son Henry cooks up another more or less brilliant scheme on the broadcast at 8:00 p.m. today. Raymond Ives is heard in the role of Henry.

Kate Smith leads an aggregation of musicians in a half hour of top entertainment tonight at 8:30. Others heard on the "Kate Smith Sings" program include The Four Chicks and Chuck and Jack Miller's forty-piece orchestra. Ted Collins produces and directs.

Lulu McConnell, George Shelton and Harry McNaughton snatch the questions from Dumbell Dean Tom Howard on tonight's 9:00 o'clock, "It Pays To Be Ignorant" program. Music to match the tempo of the program is supplied by Nat Novick's men.

Borliss Karloff appears on "Those Websters" program tonight ladened with arsenic-filled chocolate eclairs for young Bill. Karloff is the first of several guest stars slated to visit the Webster show, a Friday, 9:30 p.m., program.

Meat Griddle Cakes and Fruit Bavarian are sure bets to appease appetites stimulated by autumn winds and recipes for the two dishes are given WBIG listeners by Mary Lee Taylor Saturday morning at 10:30.

"The Pipe," starring Edmund Gwenn, veteran stage and screen actor, is the original drama to be presented on Saturday's "Theater of Today" at 12 noon. Gwenn plays the role of a bachelor who tries to evade being caught by a maiden lady.

Mr. and Mrs. (Jean Inness) Jory, have the leading parts in an original drama on "Grand Central Station" Saturday, 1:00 p.m. Filling out the cast will be Neil Fitzgerald, Anthony Kemble-Cooper and Larry Haines.

The mythical 'Little Theater Off Times Square" is the scene of "First Nighter," weekly series of dramatic programs which makes returns to the Columbia network Saturday at 7:30 p.m. "Sign of Love," starring Barbara Luddy and Olan Soule, is the initial program, a gay romantic comedy.

Gene Autry and his musical cast offer another quarter-hour of melodies from the West Sunday afternoon at 5:30. Heard with Autry on the program are the "Johnny Bond Trio," "The Pinafores" and the orchestra directed by Paul Sells.

Boris Karloff makes his second appearance of the week as he is heard in a "Thin Man" adventure with Nick and Nora Charles Sunday, 7:00 p.m. The title of Sunday's episode is "The Case of the Wailing Walls". Les Tremayne and Claudia are Nick and Nora. Director of the program is Hi Brown.

Dagwood buys himself a new suit at his boss' suggestion and the color he selects really sets his family back on their heels in Sunday's, 7:30-8:00 p.m., "Bondie" show over WBIG.

The stars of "Request Performance" are those asked for by listeners and appearing on the program Sunday at 9:00 p.m. will be Orson Welles, Eddie Bracken, Virginia O'Brien and Johnny Mercer. The show is produced by the Masquer's Club of Hollywood.

The Ambassadors are heard over WBIG on Tuesday sand Thursdays in a half hour of spiritual music. Composing the quartet are Bill Rice, Johnny Harder, Bob Loman and Harold Loman.

For a half-hour of late evening delight we suggest WBIG's own "Neath The Southern Moon" program heard every night at 11:30. The program is under the supervision of Margaret Banks, WBIG's director of music.

Employment in aluminum plants remain approximately 60 per cent above prewar levels. A greatly expanded demand for aluminum is expected to result from newly developed uses.
